Headline:
Largely dry and sunny today, but cold. Milder tomorrow.

Today:
Outbreaks of sleet and light snow in the west, soon clearing. Then largely dry with prolonged periods of sunshine, but patchy cloud across the far east of the region may produce the odd shower. Feeling cold with brisk northwesterly winds. Maximum temperature 5 deg C (41 deg F).

Tonight:
A dry evening with clear spells. Initially cold, but becoming slightly milder through the second half of the night as cloud and outbreaks of rain spread in from the west. Minimum temperature 0 deg C (32 deg F).

Friday:
Overcast with outbreaks of rain and drizzle, but becoming drier and brighter from the northwest from late morning. Further rain possible in the southwest later. Milder than recent days. Maximum temperature 10 deg C (50 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
A chilly and breezy weekend with a few showers on Saturday. Drier and largely sunny Sunday, but a band of cloud and rain will move east on Monday.
